

Posted at 3:50 p.m., Monday, April 16, 2007

Ho‘opili Website Unveiled

Community members are encouraged to check out D.R. Horton – Schuler Division’s Ho‘opili website, which showcases its proposed master planned community in West O‘ahu.

The development of Ho‘opili could create thousands of much needed homes and jobs. It will also provide a significant number of affordable and competitively-priced homes in the area, to help alleviate O‘ahu's housing shortage. As a community, Ho‘opili will offer residents a chance to work, learn and socialize right where they live, as schools, parks and shops are being planned throughout the community.

The website features how Ho‘opili fits into the City of Honolulu’s vision for ‘Ewa as a secondary urban center and it goes into detail of the community’s extensive help in the planning of Ho‘opili. One of the websites key features is an interactive transportation map showcasing transportation construction plans for the ‘Ewa region.

Actual building of Ho‘opili is not expected to start until 2010, but interested community members can learn more by visiting www.hoopilioahu.com.